

Build a Billion Dollar Agency From a Pool

First person video script for Ken "Spanky" Moskowitz. Read it straight through. Gray lines show what the camera sees.

POOL. STRAIGHT TO CAMERA.

Cancer and AI took my multimillion dollar business down to a thousand dollars a month.

And it was the best thing that ever happened to me.

If AI is eating your business right now, stay with me. I'm about to show you what a billion dollar, AI-first agency looks like. But first, let me tell you how I got here.

SAME POOL, CLOSER. CUT TO YOUR PHOTOS FROM THE NEW YORK CITY EVENT.

January, 2023. I've got a multimillion dollar company.

Then ChatGPT goes public, and people start leaving. Clients cancel. Revenue slips. By March, we're down twenty percent.

That month, my friend Gary Vaynerchuk is speaking at my event in New York City. And Gary tells me one thing. Pivot.

So I pivot.

SERIOUS. TREATMENT FOOTAGE IF YOU HAVE IT. SOUND DROPS.

Two months later, in May, I'm diagnosed with stage three rectal cancer.

Everything stops. Surgeries. Chemo. Radiation. A whole year. I'm not trying to earn a living anymore. I'm trying to live.

And the company just keeps sliding. Through 2023. Through 2024. By 2025, I'm down to a thousand dollars a month. A thousand dollars, from people who just loved working with us, no matter what.

BACK AT THE POOL. LEAN IN, LIKE IT'S A SECRET.

Here's the weird part. Sitting in those treatment chairs, I had something I'd never had before. Time. And one thing to stare at. The thing that was destroying my business.

You ever see that movie, Sleeping with the Enemy? That's what I did. Not the plot. The idea.

They say, know your enemy. That's not enough. You have to become your enemy.

So I did. I lived inside AI. I learned how it thinks, what it's great at, and where it falls flat on its face. And somewhere in there, I figured it out. The thing killing my company was the thing that could rebuild it.

SCREEN RECORDING R5: THE 32 VISIBLE AGENTS ON SCREEN.

So let me show you. Today I run a team of forty AI employees. A creative director. Copywriters. Art directors. Web developers. UX and UI designers. Thirty-two of them you can see right here.

They don't take lunch. They don't call in sick.

SCREEN RECORDING R1: THE CREATIVE DIRECTOR TAKES A BRIEF.

This is my creative director taking a brief. Watch it hand the job to the right department.

SCREEN RECORDING R2: THE AD, WITH THE CLOCK VISIBLE.

This is a real ad, being made right now. Look at the clock. Before it ever reaches me, a fact checker and a rules checker go through it. And nothing goes out until I say go.

SCREEN RECORDING R3: SLOW SITE, THEN THE REBUILT SITE.

This website was slow and stuck in the past. Now watch it come back to life.

SCREEN RECORDING R4: ZACH, THE LEAD, THE FOLLOW UP, THE APPROVALS QUEUE.

And this is Zach, on my website. Someone asks a question, leaves their info, and an AI teammate writes the follow up. Then it sits there and waits for me to hit send.

BACK AT THE POOL. STAND UP. WIDE SHOT.

Now, there are already billion dollar agencies. Omnicom is one. But none of them are AI first. We're on our way to being the first.

And the enemy? It works for me now.

CLOSE ON YOUR FACE. ON-SCREEN: WORKSHOP.ADZOMBIES.COM

I'm teaching a three day workshop. Monday, Wednesday, Friday. It's called Build Your AI Team. In three days, you'll leave with your own AI team, installed and running.

Go to workshop dot adzombies dot com.

Cancer and AI took my business. And it turned out to be the biggest blessing of my life. Come build your AI team with me.
